

The mystery of Khufu's pyramid explained to children

Published: Tuesday, 14 February 2017 09:57

Hits: 2890

Using the Saint-Simon library's collection and in partnership with them, ArkéoTopia invites children and their parents to come and discover the hidden side of archaeology at

The mystery of Khufu's pyramid explained to children at Saint-Simon library, Paris 7

See upcoming dates in the "Agenda" section or request a workshop with us in the location of your choice.

Around 2457 BC, a gigantic monument was created: Khufu's pyramid (also known as the Pyramid of Cheops or the Great Pyramid of Giza). The large pyramid was the culmination of an idea of an architect inspired several centuries previously and has continually sparked curiosity and incited questions from anyone who has seen it or heard about it, but it kept its secrets buried in the depths of time. Although there have been many hypotheses, none of them managed to explain the whole construction process until Henri Houdin's intervention in 1999. This architect had an idea which would completely change the life of his son Jean-Pierre by throwing him into the Khufu adventure, bringing a new perspective to our understanding of the pyramid's large construction site, this pharaoh's pyramid and pyramids in general.

Free entry

Limited places, reserve with Saint-Simon library on 01 53 58 76 40 or email bibliotheque.saint-simon@paris.fr

An anteroom behind the king's room?
(© Dassault Systeme)

Overview of the construction of the Great Pyramid.
(© Dassault Systeme)

The mystery of Khufu's pyramid explained to children

Published: Tuesday, 14 February 2017 09:57

Hits: 2890

BIBLIOTHÈQUE SAINT-SIMON DU 7^{ème}

Children's department - Ground floor, 116 rue de Grenelle 75007 Paris

01 53 58 76 40 — bibliotheque.saint-simon@paris.fr

Consult the library's catalogue

Access

M° Solférino (Line 12) et M° Varenne (line 13)

To find out more about ArkéoTopia, please see the page presenting our association, or write to us at contact@arkeotopia.org