

The quality of an action is measured by the number of partners an organization attracts. Despite its size, ArkeoTopia is proud to have interested a variety of organizations, large and small. A look back at the public and private organizations with which ArkeoTopia, an alternative approach to archaeology has worked or from which it has received financial and moral support.

Our partners

WIKIMEDIA

FRANCE

Wikimédia France, the French association which works for the free sharing of knowledge through Wikimedia galaxy (Wikipedia, Wiktionary, Wikimedia commons, Wikidata, etc...), or through actions led by the association involving its own members and volunteer workers like Wiki loves Monuments or Wiki Loves Earth – wikimedia.fr.

ArkeoTopia supports the actions of the association and became in June 2016, official partner of the association in order to provide its skills and expertise in relation to heritage, science and education in the field of archaeology in exchange for logistics and human support.

Saint-Simon library, public library of the 7th district of Paris, whose collection is oriented towards both children and adults. Since March 2011, ArkeoTopia has conducted workshops for young people and held conferences at the Saint-Simon library of the 7th. This partnership was an opportunity for wonderful events such as the Detective novel and archaeology exhibition about the character Guy Marais through his comic version and the participative workshop Wikipedia and Science for the Numok festival – To follow the activities of Saint-Simon library, see its page www.facebook.com/BibliothequeSaintSimon
