

ArkéoTopia is a young non-profit organization under the French law of 1901. Its aim is to give another perspective to archaeology today non-in order to better help existing bodies prepare that of tomorrow. By welcoming and supporting professionals, students, and French and foreign amateurs in the field, and by helping to popularize archaeological research and to champion it, ArkéoTopia aims to be a supplementary tool to current research.

Commentary on the association's objectives

The non-profit organisation ArkéoTopia, based in Paris (France), was created on 21 May 2007. It works towards creating a fresh perspective on archaeological research. Its objectives can be summarized under two main branches: contact with archaeology students and researchers, and the creation of stronger links between the wider public and the sphere of archaeological research.

In addition, ArkéoTopia undertakes scientific supervision of students and researchers. This is how ArkéoTopia contributes towards supervising and dynamizing the completion of research papers as well as serious research projects carried out by researchers outside of an institutional framework.

ArkéoTopia also offers to introduce the public to archaeological research from a different angle to that usually given, popularizing archaeology.
