ArkeoTopia's Legal notice

Warning for recruitment professionals and employers about imposters posing as employees or ex-employees of ArkeoTopia®

We have decided to react upon discovering that some people are using ArkeoTopia's name without our knowledge in order to claim professional qualities on social networks such as LinkedIn, Viadeo, etc., although they have never belonged to our organization.

Through its activities, ArkeoTopia creates human and professional links both between active members and volunteers as well as between employees with a view to mutual enrichment. We are always happy to see those who have contributed use their experience within ArkeoTopia to progress professionally, even to place them centre-stage wherever possible.

However, we cannot tolerate the work carried out by these teams and people being falsely used for individual benefit, thus usurping our name, and risking prejudice to ArkeoTopia's credibility, which has been patiently built up since 2007.

Although our actions against the identified imposters were successful, ArkeoTopia does however prefer to take constructive action in line with our mission. Furthermore, since we are exigent about the quality of our activity leaders and administrative personnel, we advise recruitment professionals and any other professionals or amateurs who use these profiles to contact ArkeoTopia's team for confirmation of any claim made on social networks or internet sites.

You may now find out about certain active members and our employees by visiting the Who are we? page on this site. Do not hesitate to contact us by email at secretariat@arkeotopia.org if you have any doubts.
